Goldheim's

"Pledged to Quality"

Fourteenth St. at New York Ave.

STORE HOURS: 8:30 A.M. to 6 P.M.

Mr. Goldheim Talks:

"An announcement to make, you say?"

"Yes, we're all set for the spring season," remarked Mr. Goldheim. "Better prepared than ever before to serve and satisfy men and young men who seek and value clothing of quality and character."

"As an introduction to our showing of new Spring Suits we illustrate the 'Traymore'—a typical model of the new season's smart styles. These Suits are tailored of selected American weaves—warranted all-wool—in colors to appeal to the good taste of men who know what they want."

"Prices as low as $30, and up to $60."

"Spring in the Hat Department, too?"

"To be sure," said Mr. Goldheim. "All the new shapes and shades in spring Hats are on show, and they're selling every day, because we seem to have the right Hats for men who want what's right at the right price—$4.00 and up."

GETTING LINE ON SEASON'S "CATCH"

Persons Interested in Shad and Herring Industry Differ Regarding Prospects.

HIGH PRICES PROBABLE

Persons interested in the shad and herring industry differ as to the prospects for a big catch during the season that recently opened.

"It always has been a saying that a hard winter brings a good spring fishing season," remarked William H. Neitzey, one of the older fish dealers on the river front.

"Last spring, following a hard winter," he added, "there was good fishing, but labor was scarce, and what the past open winter will bring remains to be seen."

Mr. Neitzey said the number of shad and herring being caught at this time is about the same as at the same period last year, but last year there had been ice in the river several weeks and it was just leaving about this time of the year. Only a few shad and herrings are being caught in the nets, he said, but the catch should increase almost daily.

Think Prices Will Be High.

Dealers, generally, say they fear there will be no cheap prices for shad and herring prevail this season, and in all probability their sale by the pound will continue throughout the season. Should they become plentiful, however, the old method of selling them by one hundred will be restored.

Owners of nets say it is expensive to equip a crew of men enough to handle the big nets and keep the men on the river waiting for the fish to appear in numbers sufficiently large to make the catch profitable. It is more or less a gamble, they state, for it sometimes happens that the fish are so scarce they fail to net money enough to pay for the outlay and trouble.

Fish are not yet being caught in large enough quantities to give the fish wharves and municipal market on the river front an appearance of activity. Plentiful supplies of yellow perch, pike and catfish and a few eels and coveys being received from men who operate small seines and trap nets within fifty miles of this city, but only a few shad and herring are being received.

Frozen Fish Plentiful.

Numerous large consignments of frozen fish are being received at the river front and in the local markets from cold storage plants in the north, where, it is reported, packers this year lost millions of dollars. Fish were put away at 12 cents a pound, said one dealer, and some of them can be bought for 5 cents today. He said many cases of the fish had been condemned this week. The dealer suggested that these fish were put in storage because it was believed the war would continue another year, and the sudden termination of hostilities and withdrawal of government orders meant losses for the packers.

One dealer in the municipal fish market has an attractive display of live fish in his establishment, including bass, pike, eels, yellow perch and carp. He said he kept them alive merely for display purposes and because of his interest in fishing, explaining that many live fish are received from nearby nets early in the season. He has only very few bass and white perch have been received the past week or two.

Seines Soon in Operation.

Three big seines and men to operate them soon will be in evidence on the lower Potomac. Capt. George Neitzey, one of the best known fishermen on the Potomac and Albert Faunce, also prominently identified with fishing interests, already have wet their big seine at Windmill point, mouth of Potomac creek, and their largest catch this season was 115 shad and 13 herring.

Capt. Jacob Faunce and Joseph Chivell will fish the Gunns, mouth of Aquia creek, and B. J. Jones will fish the landing at Passapatanzy, below Potomac creek. In addition to the three big outfits, it is stated, three small traps and small seines will be operated, many of them already being in use.

Fairly large supplies of shad have been received from Florida since January 1, beginning of the season for shad and herring, and this week some fine specimens of shad have been received from North Carolina waters. Florida shad today sold at from 35 to 40 cents a pound, while North Carolina stock sold for 45 and 50 cents, the same as the few Potomac shad that reached here.

Warning to Consumers.

Dealers say consumers should be warned against buying hickory jacks for shad. Some of the "jacks" as they are called, are unusually large this year, it is stated, and may easily be disposed of for the favorite variety. There is a decided difference between them, however, said a dealer, the "jacks" lacking the flavor of the shad and containing many more bones.

Reports from northern waters quote the older fishermen as believing the outlook for an early run of shad is particularly bright. They expect a revival of the industry, which showed a rapid decline the past few years, hearing that many persons who started the season in Florida are watching their way north, following the fish to colder waters.

Fishermen say they are not feeling the scarcity of labor this year that was felt a year ago, many fishermen having returned from the Army to renew their work. In some sections, where government regulations last year hampered the fishermen, the ban has been lifted and normal conditions will prevail.

LIQUOR CAUSES DILEMMA.

North Carolina Man Decides to Take It Back to Baltimore.

Henry Monroe Holt, railroad brakeman, from Fayetteville, N. C., who was arrested as he was boarding a train with fourteen quarts of liquor in his possession, found himself in a dilemma following his release. Officials reached the conclusion that Holt had violated no law by bringing the liquor here, his intention being to leave on the first connecting train, and the liquor was ordered returned to him.

If Holt remained in this city, it was pointed out, he would become amenable to prosecution under the home-dry law, and if he boarded a train and crossed the river into Virginia he would be liable to arrest. He said he knew he would be liable to arrest if caught in North Carolina with it.

Counting his cash, Holt said he had money enough to take him to Baltimore, where he would dispose of the liquor.

Chicago Elects School Head.

CHICAGO, March 7.—Charles E. Chadsey, superintendent of Detroit's schools, has been elected superintendent of Chicago schools by the board of education. It is expected that the salary increase to $18,000 will be presented at the next meeting of the board. If voted, it will be the highest paid to any city school superintendent in the country, or any university president.

WANTS U. S. AS MANDATORY.

Miran Sevasly of Armenia in Washington Pleading for Country.

Miran Sevasly, chairman of the Armenian national council of America, is in Washington, conferring with officials regarding the question of the United States becoming the mandatory for Armenia under the proposed league of nations. Mr. Sevasly said the people of Armenia as well as Armenians in America and Europe desired that the United States act as mandatory for their country and that although they would have to accept the will of the majority nations, they did not wish to have a European nation as mentor.

Mr. Sevasly, in discussing the responsibility which would be involved, said the trust would be a light one and would not necessitate the sending of more than one regiment of American soldiers to Armenia.

Knapp to Succeed Sims Abroad.

LONDON, March 6.—Rear Admiral Harry S. Knapp will succeed Vice Admiral W. S. Sims as commander of the American naval forces in European waters when Admiral Sims returns to the United States about the 1st of April. Admiral Knapp at present is attending the interallied aerial conference in Paris.

TWO MILLION TO CHARITIES.

J. B. Finley Leaves Part of Fortune to Religion and Education.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 7.—More than $2,000,000 of the estate of the late J. B. Finley, steel magnate, who died February 27, is bequeathed to religious and education charities, according to the will which was filed here yesterday. With the exception of a $100,000 legacy and $12,000 a year to the widow, Mrs. Marguerite Finley, and six $10,000 legacies to relatives, the estate was devoted to charity. No specific charities are mentioned, this matter being left in the hands of the trustees.

A "Feature" in Spring Suits and Top Coats

It takes three things to produce distinctive Clothes—taste to design; ability to interpret and skill in production.

These three things—taste, talent and skill—have given Saks Clothes preference with men who discriminate—and mark the special lot of Suits and Top Coats we are singling out for your attention tomorrow—with the added attraction, of course, of the proverbial superiority of the woolsens we utilize. More pronounced this season than ever before.

THE TOP COAT is a waisted model, in Heather Mixtures; slash pockets; deep plait, but no vent; eighth lined with fancy silk, silk sleeve linings and all seams silk piped. Very smart, but very practical garment as well.

THE SUITS are plain Brown, Tan and Green; straight front, with waistline seam; slash pockets, finished with welt. Eighth lined with fancy silk and silk piped seams. No more effective model has been designed for any season.
